

MINOR: APPLIED LINGUISTICS

Student Learning Outcomes

Students graduating from this program will:

- Demonstrate foundational understanding of the structure of language, including phonetics, syntax, semantics, and how language develops and varies across contexts.
- Identify and apply major theories of first and second language acquisition, especially in culturally and linguistically diverse learning environments.
- Examine how language practices reflect and shape cultural identities and intercultural interactions, with a focus on global competence
- Demonstrate knowledge of instructional methods, lesson planning, and assessment strategies appropriate for teaching world languages or English to speakers of other languages (ESOL).
