CLUBS AND ORGANIZATIONS

The University of Missouri—Kansas City has over 250 student organizations that embody a wide variety of interests including cultural, educational, recreational, and social clubs. Students can get involved through co-curricular opportunities and foster new interests as members of student organizations.

Students who are involved on campus tend to have a better connection with the university, perform better in the classroom, and are selected to professional and graduate programs at a higher rate than those students who do not get involved.

Each fall the Office of Student Involvement hosts a student organization fair where students can learn more about the myriad of student organizations on campus. And, if you can’t find what you’re looking for, you can always create your own student organization!
